Dear Tom and Judy McFarland,

To begin with if you have already received a letter from me please disregard this one, its' contents are the same. For some reason I have the feeling that the original letter did not arrive and that is why I decided to resent the letter.

First and foremost, I am writing to you to thank you for donating to me the computer on which I am currently using to write you this letter, the printer, and extra cartridge along with the programs. The computer programs have and will continue to be very helpful to me. Not many people are willing to donate some of their belongings. Most of the people who actually donate something are known to donate food or clothing. In your case you went above and beyond by donating to me the computer, printer, and extra cartridge along with the programs, and for that benevolent act of generosity I not only thank you, but also admire you. Instead of selling everything or throwing it away you decided to donate it, others would have never done what you did especially in the rough times that we are enduring in now with the economy. I am truly honored to have been the recipient of your donation. I was thrilled and happy when I found out that I would become fortunate enough to receive the computer, printer, and extra cartridge along with the programs. Little did I know that I was also going to be able to meet you, the donor and thank you in person. Thanks to your donation I was able to meet scholarship deadlines with ease; I no longer had to be in school rushing to have everything done on time or make time to go to the library. Before I end this letter I also want to thank you for coming all the way to the apartment in which I live in and setting the computer up for me; I would have probably had trouble in doing that or I would not have been able to set it up. Again thank you Tom and Judy McFarland. God bless you!

Thank You

Sincerely,

Iyari Villanueva
